miles above the city of Richmond, containing about hind—a portion of which is no rich as land can be, and the whole valuable for farming purposes. But its chief value consists in its great water-power, and never-failing bank of the purest sand. The former, at a trifling vapose, can be unde adequate to any demand, and the latter is valuable for building in the city of Richmond, having yielded for that purpose a net annual income, for the last five years, of from 250 to $400. The sand is also considered by some to be suitable for the manufature of phase. The larges, boats that can envirable the James river count in its improved state, can at all times approach the Island, which will reader it a desirable location for an ertensive manufacturing establishment, especially of iron, as its convenient to the coal and iron region. The Island also abounds in the best Grasife stone for building purposes.—This property, in a present unimproved condition, can readily be resuled out for any term of years, at $500 per annum.
